

NorthgateArinso provides HR 'as you like it'

Unveils ResourceLink Aurora for versatile HR solutions delivery to the UK market

NorthgateArinso, the global HR software and solutions provider, has launched ResourceLink Aurora on the UK market. ResourceLink Aurora is the next iteration of the company's proven HR solutions platform which can now be delivered OnDemand, OnPremise or in combination. The versatile solution puts workforce information at the HR team's fingertips, delivering all elements of HR and payroll from a single platform.

Unveiled at the HR Software Show 2009 in London, UK, ResourceLink Aurora is highly configurable and includes the ability to add complementary information – including reference-checking tools, business intelligence data, weather reports and news feeds, both from NorthgateArinso and external sources. It gives organisations the flexibility to choose a zero-footprint, hosted or in-house solution, or to offer different delivery models to different offices.

The versatility is something the industry has been crying out for, according to UK managing director Malcolm Aldis: "The benefits of OnDemand during a tough economy have been well touted in the press, but until now it's been hard to see how this translates to the HR department," he commented. "Zero-footprint software will be the right choice for some companies, but what people really need is choice, to find the model that suits them, with the right technology that will deliver value to the business quickly."

The solution was developed based on regular consultation with ResourceLink's already strong customer base of over 400 organisations from both public and private sectors, including some well respected household names. NorthgateArinso not only used its internal specialists, but consultation from worldwide industry analysts to enhance the HR professional's overall experience when using a functionality rich product such as ResourceLink Aurora.

Available from June 17 in the United Kingdom, ResourceLink Aurora is fully supported by NorthgateArinso's technical strength and the HR knowledge and expertise of its people.
